

Teach These Children

Fivefold enrichment

Action Vs. Reaction

In life, we are all either dictating or reacting to our life circumstances. When a person feels in control of their life, there is peace and joy. When there is no control, we function in a state of constant reaction, disorder and discontent. How do we help our children position themselves to reach their goals with focus and direction so they aren't affected by every storm of life?

Activity

As parents it is imperative we teach our children to seek the Lord for wisdom, purpose and direction for their life. The Lord will use your child's natural gifts and talents to guide them into what He wants for them. When we function in obedience, we become resilient in times of trouble. In other words, the storms of life will help us to hone our skills and remind us not to lose focus with what He has called us to do. When there is no direction, these same storms can distract us, make us question our purpose and keep us from finding our divine purpose. Our children need to be taught how to seek the Lord for wisdom in these matters. Make this a part of your daily prayers with your children. Lord, help (child's name) hear your plan for their life. Close their ears of those who would distract them with plans for money or recognition. We know that when we are in line with what the you have called us to do Lord, there is peace. Thank you that your plans for (child's name) are good and they are in tune to your voice. In Jesus name, amen.

TIPS

Do not let your own circumstances prevent you from helping your child in this area. You don't need to have their purpose; you only need to point your children to the One who does.
